BEIJING — Sex may sell, but a steamy video purportedly taken inside a Uniqlo fitting room in Beijing is giving the clothing retailer some uncomfortable attention.

Online searches for the Japanese clothing brand soared this week after the viral spread of the video apparently showing a young couple having sex in the Chinese capital's flagship store.

But the video also has drawn the concern of police and China's highest web regulator who are investigating whether it was a vulgar marketing gimmick.

The 71-second video shows a man filming himself with a woman in front of a mirror. A Uniqlo store announcement can be heard clearly in the background welcoming customers and advising them that fitting rooms are on the

Pluto's Portrait: Ice Mountains, No Craters and, for Scientists, a 'Toy Store'

By KENNETH CHANG

LAUREL, Md. — The first close-up image of Pluto has revealed mountains as tall as the Rockies, and an absence of craters — discoveries that, to their delight, helped scientists working on NASA's New Horizons mission and provided justification for a journey nine and a half years in the making.

Pluto until a few weeks ago was a blurry dot. Within the past couple of days, it has been transformed into a dynamic world with varied geography, discoveries that point to the possibility of ice volcanoes and churning tectonics. All of this new information could provide clues to how planets form and even to the origins of some of the building blocks of life.

"I don't think any one of us could have imagined that this could have been a bet-scientist.

Earlier in the day, New Horizons had sent back the first batch of a bountiful trove of data that it had collected during its close flyby of Pluto. Dr. Stern said the rooms where scientists got their first look at the images were "something close to bedlam."

A day before, NASA had released a mesmerizing image of the 1,473-mile-wide disc of Pluto, indistinct by a bright NBC may have fired Donald Trump, but the GOP presidential candidate left with a truckload of the network's cash. For 14 seasons as the star of "The Apprentice," Trump earned $213.6 million. He didn't shy away from his gold-plated wealth and his boasts about earning $362 million – not including dividends, interest, capital gains, rents and royalties – in 2014 alone. He touted success in picking stocks for a $27 million windfall. Trump, rising to No. 1 in a recent national Republican presidential poll, has impressed voters with his larger-than-life rhetoric and refusal to back down from comments that Mexico is sending the United States criminals and rapists and should be charged $100,000 for each illegal immigrant crossing the border.

Obama said there is no way that the prestigious medal could be revoked. "With respect to the Medal of Freedom, there is no precedent for revoking a medal. We don't have that mechanism. And as you know, I tend to make it a policy not to comment on the specifics of cases where there might still be, if not criminal, then civil issues involved," he said. The president said he does not think the criminal-justice system is the sole source of racial tension in the country or the key institution to resolving the opportunity gap. "But I think it is a part of the broader set of challenges that we face in creating a more perfect union," he said. "The good news is that this is one of those rare issues where we've got some Republican and Democratic interests as well as federal, state and local interest in solving the problem," he said. "I think people recognize that there are violent criminals out there, and they've got to be locked up. We've got to have tough prosecutors. We have to support our law enforcement officials. Police are in a tough job, and they are helping to keep us safe, and we are grateful and thankful to them," he added.

"But what we also know is this huge spike in incarcerations is also driven by nonviolent drug offenses where the sentencing is completely out of proportion with the crime. So it compounds problems that these communities already have," Obama said.
