2-13-2015 It's Friday the 13th. The livery cab that was carrying the CBS News correspondent Bob Simon on Wednesday night when it slammed into metal barricades, killing Mr. Simon, was speeding up in the seconds before the crash, the authorities said on Thursday. Mr. Simon, 73, who was in his 19th season as a correspondent for "60 Minutes," was sitting in the back of the Lincoln Town Car and was not wearing a seat belt, the police said. He was taken to Mount Sinai Roosevelt Hospital, where he was pronounced dead. The livery-cab driver, Abdul Reshad Fedahi, has not been charged with any crime. He obtained a license in October and was still in the six-month probationary period at the time of the crash, the New York City Taxi and Limousine Commission said. The commission suspended his license pending the outcome of the crash investigation. He was being treated for two broken legs and a broken arm. The police are trying to determine whether they can retrieve a "black box" device from the livery cab that might have recorded speed and direction at the time of impact. Around 6:45 p.m. on Wednesday, the police said, the 2010 Lincoln Town Car was traveling south in the left lane on 12th Avenue near 30th Street when traffic began slowing for a red light. In the center lane, a black 2003 Mercedes-Benz sedan also slowed. But the livery cab accelerated, the police said. The front passenger's side of the car struck the rear driver's side of the Mercedes-Benz, and then the livery cab swerved into the thick metal bollards that line the median. The police did not find any skid marks that would suggest the livery cab's brakes were used before the crash. Both Mr. Fedahi and the driver of the Mercedes-Benz, who was not injured, tested negative for alcohol.

Sandy Hook Commission advises on school security, mental health By Skyler Inman Yale University News Staff Reporter Friday, February 13, 2015 Two years and two months after the fatal shooting of 20 children and six adults at Sandy Hook Elementary School in Newtown, Connecticut, the 16-person Sandy Hook Advisory Commission has released a draft of its final report suggesting changes to school security and mental health policies across the state. The 256-page report, which the commission expects to present to Gov. Dannel Malloy in March, offers recommendations to revise current legislation on school safety, mental health and gun violence prevention. Since Malloy created the commission in January 2013, the group has heard testimonies from over 100 experts. In its current form, the draft lists its final recommendations to the governor, including 12 recommendations for improving school safety, 30 for reducing gun violence and 53 for improvements to mental health care in the state. 2-12-2015 "1 of a 1,001 Nobels" Ceftriaxone II Time Release for long as you live! Ceftriaxone inhibits bacterial cell wall synthesis by means of binding to the penicillin-binding proteins (PBPs). Inhibition of PBPs would in turn inhibit the transpeptidation step in peptidoglycan synthesis which is required for bacterial cell walls. Like other cephalosporins, ceftriaxone is bacteriocidal and exhibits time-dependent killing. [11] (by inhibiting the cell wall synthesis).

Mr. Simon was a passenger in a livery cab that sideswiped a Mercedes-Benz sedan stopped at a red light on 12th Avenue near West 30th Street about 6:45 p.m., the police said. The cab then careened into the median, crashing into the metal stanchions separating the northbound and southbound traffic lanes. Mr. Simon was taken to Mount Sinai Roosevelt Hospital, where he was pronounced dead. The 44-year-old livery-cab driver was taken to Bellevue Hospital Center with injuries to his legs and arms, the Fire Department said. The driver of the Mercedes-Benz was not injured, according to the police. The police said on Wednesday night that the accident was under investigation.

The patch clamp technique, for which Erwin Neher and Bert Sakmann won the 1991 Nobel Prize in Physiology or Medicine, has provided a great deal insight into the electrophysiological processes happening on the cellular level by monitoring ion channel activity. Now a team of researchers have combined a patch clamp with what is essentially an atomic force microscope to be able to now study beating cardiac cells. The technology relies on a special force-controlled nanopipette that was modeled on microchanneled cantilevers used in atomic force microscopes.

"Moment-to-moment information from the environment is necessary to ensure quick, decisive action. In addition to soldiers, police officers, firefighters, trauma surgeons, day traders, pilots, and athletes may all benefit from short-form mindfulness training to curb attentional lapses and mind wandering," added Jha. "With the continued deployment of our soldiers to face complex threats around the world, these results are a critical addition to our ever-evolving readiness and resiliency toolkit," said MG Walter Piatt, Deputy Commanding General of the U.S. Army in Europe. "Ensuring our men and women are both mentally and physically prepared is essential to mission success," he said. "This study provides important information to help us do that." The researchers studied three groups of military service members, offering MT to two of the groups, comprising a total of 75 soldiers at Schofield Barracks, Hawaii, eight to ten months before deployment to Afghanistan.
