The mechanisms of increased breast cancer risk by alcohol may be:

- Increased estrogen and androgen levels^[8]
- Enhanced mammary gland susceptibility to carcinogenesis^[8]
- Increased mammary DNA damage^[8]
- Greater metastatic potential of breast cancer cells^[8]

Their magnitude likely depends on the amount of Mastectomy specimen containing a very large cancer of the breast (in this case, an invasive ductal carcinoma).

Urey's mentor Gilbert Newton Lewis isolated the first sample of pure heavy water by electrolysis in 1933. Deuterium is not radioactive), and is due to deuterium's action in generally inhibiting cell division. It is more toxic to malignant cells than normal cells but the concentrations needed are too high for regular use. [30] As in chemotherapy

2-7-2015 Mary... Oral doses of heavy water in the range of several grams, as well as heavy oxygen ^{18}O , are routinely used in human metabolic experiments. See doubly labeled water testing. Since one in about every 6400 hydrogen atoms is deuterium, a 50 kg human containing 32 kg of body water would normally contain enough deuterium (about 1.1 gram) to make 5.5 grams of pure heavy water, so roughly this dose is required to double the amount of deuterium in the body.

2-7-2015 Mary... An alternative process, [37] patented by Graham M. Keyser, uses lasers to selectively dissociate deuterated hydrofluorocarbons to form deuterium fluoride, which can then be separated by physical means.

2-7-2015 Mary... Pakistan's academic scientists to build the atomic bomb for national survival. [11] At the Multan meeting, Bhutto also appointed Munir Ahmad Khan as chairman of Pakistan Atomic Energy Commission (PAEC), who, until then, had been working as Director at the nuclear power and Reactor Division of the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), in Vienna, Austria. In December 1972, Abdus Salam led the establishment of Theoretical Physics Group (TPG) as he called scientists working at ICTP to report to Munir Ahmad Khan. This marked the beginning of Pakistan's pursuit of nuclear deterrence capability. Following India's surprise nuclear test, codenamed Smiling Buddha in 1974, the first confirmed nuclear test by a nation outside the permanent five members of the United Nations Security Council, the goal to develop nuclear weapons received considerable impetus.[12]

Challenger Soul-searching; Mary's Thumbs-down as she is a Wine-O we have to reinvent as a sober star travel inventor!

2-7-2015 Mary... Finally, on 28 May 1998, a few weeks after India's second nuclear test (Operation Shakti), Pakistan detonated five nuclear devices in the Ras Koh Hills in the Chagai district, Balochistan. This operation was named Chagai-I by Pakistan, the underground iron-steel tunnel having been long-constructed by provincial martial law administrator General Rahimuddin Khan during the 1980s. The last test of Pakistan was conducted at the sandy Kharan Desert under the codename Chagai-II, also in Balochistan, on 30 May 1998. Pakistan's fissile material production takes place at Nilore, Kahuta, and Khushab/Jauharabad, where weapons-grade plutonium is refined. Pakistan thus became the seventh country in the world to successfully develop and test nuclear weapons.

2-7-2015 Mary... Estimates of Pakistan's stockpile of nuclear warheads vary. The most recent analysis, published in the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists in 2010, estimates that Pakistan has 70-90 nuclear warheads.[80] In 2001, the U.S.-based Natural Resources Defense Council (NRDC) estimated that Pakistan had built 24-48 HEU-based nuclear warheads with HEU reserves for 30-52 additional warheads.[81][82] In 2003, the U.S. Navy Center for Contemporary Conflict estimated that Pakistan possessed between 35 and 95 nuclear warheads, with a median of 60.[83] In 2003, the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace estimated a stockpile of approximately 50 weapons. By contrast, in 2000, U.S. military and intelligence sources estimated that Pakistan's nuclear arsenal may be as large as 100 warheads.[84]

Challenger Soul-searching; Mary's Thumbs-down as she is a Wine-O we have to reinvent as a sober star travel inventor!

2-7-2015 Mary... The actual size of Pakistan's nuclear stockpile is hard for experts to gauge owing to the extreme secrecy which surrounds the program in Pakistan. However, in 2007, retired Pakistan Army's Brigadier-General Feroz Khan, previously second in command at the Strategic Arms Division of Pakistan Military told a Pakistani newspaper that Pakistan had "about 80 to 120 genuine warheads." [85] [86]

2-7-2015 Mary... Pakistan tested plutonium capability in the sixth nuclear test, codename Chagai-II, on 30 May 1998 at Kharan Desert.

2-7-2015 Mary... The critical mass of a bare mass sphere of 90% enriched uranium-235 is 52 kg. Correspondingly, the critical mass of a bare mass sphere of plutonium-239 is 8-10 kg. The bomb that destroyed Hiroshima used 60 kg of U-235 while the Nagasaki Pu bomb used only 6 kg of Pu-239. Since all Pakistani bomb designs are implosion-type weapons, they will typically use between 15-25 kg of U-235 for their cores. Reducing the amount of U-235 in cores from 60 kg in gun-type devices to 25 kg in implosion devices is only possible by using good neutron reflector/tamper material such as beryllium metal, which increases the weight of the bomb. And the uranium, like plutonium, is only usable in the core of a bomb in metallic form.

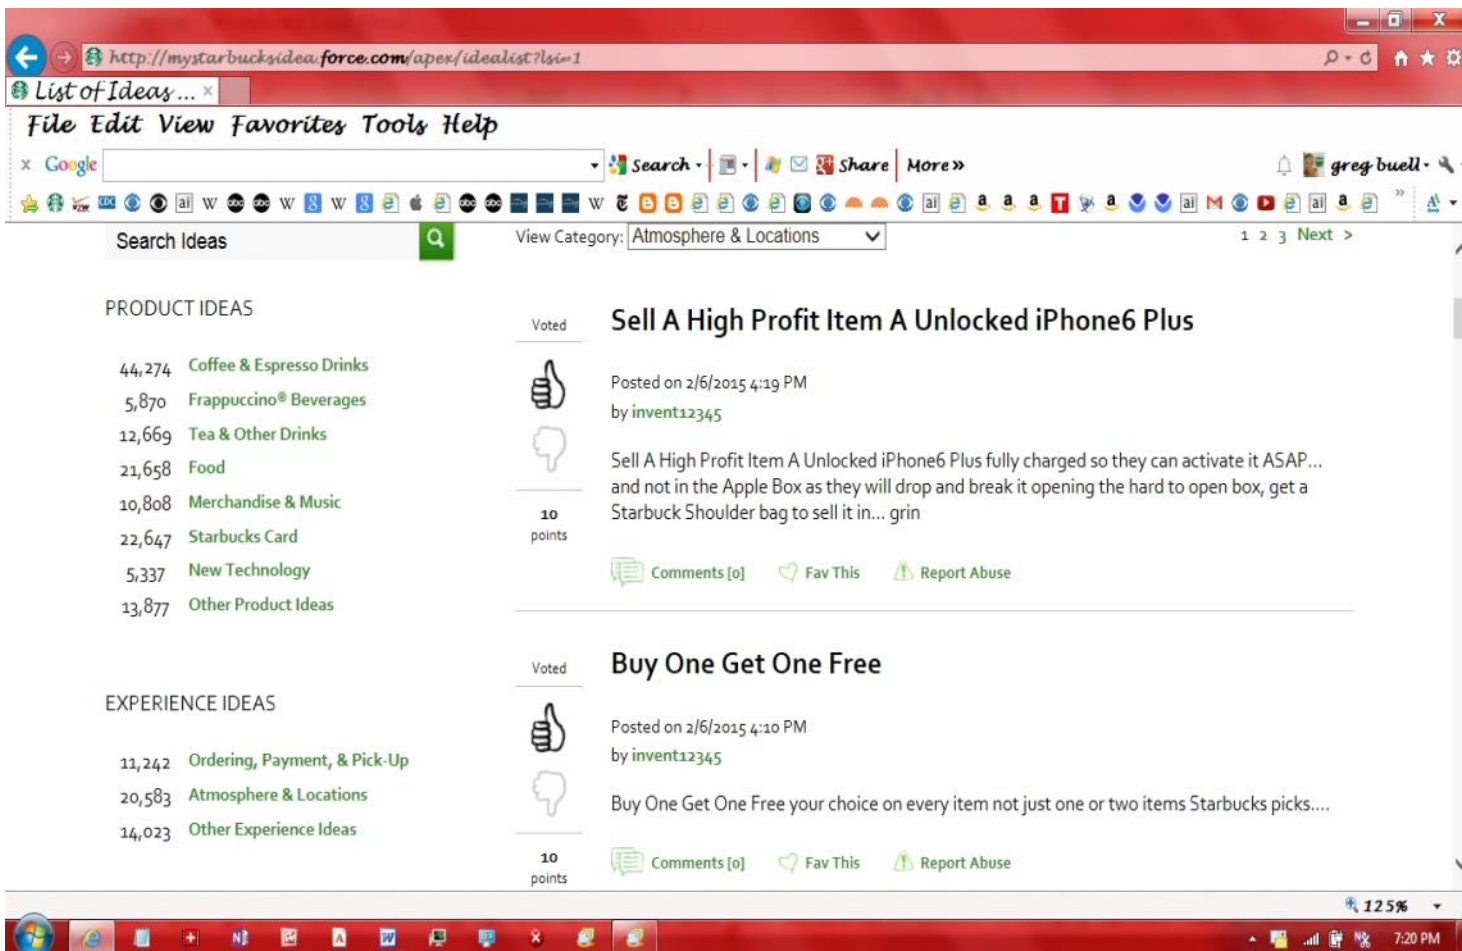

2-7-2015 Mary... However, only 2-4 kg of plutonium is needed for the same device that would need 20-25 kg of U-235. Additionally, a few grams of tritium (a by-product of plutonium production reactors and thermonuclear fuel) can increase the overall yield of the bombs by a factor of three to four. "The sixth Pakistan nuclear test, codename Chagai-II, (30 May 1998) at Kharan Desert was a successful test of a sophisticated, compact, but powerful bomb designed to be carried by missiles. A whole range and variety of weapons using Pu-239 can be easily built, both for aircraft delivery and especially for missiles (in which U-235 cannot be used). So if Pakistan wants to be a nuclear power with an operational weapon capability, both first and second strike, based on assured strike platforms like ballistic and cruise missiles (unlike aircraft), the only solution is with plutonium, which has been the first choice of every country that built a nuclear arsenal.

2-7-2015 Mary... Pakistan Moslems used $777 Trillion from the Pentagon to build 100 H-Bombs in 2014 when they should have been building a Trillion Electric Windmill Ford Escorts... Let Greg escort you, to Driver Training in Moslem Saudi Arabia + Pakistan!

2-7-2015 Mary... 1984 II State of the Arts "Dash Cam" on all 2014 Model Cars.... Woman hit, driver flees BY ADAM LINHARDT Citizen Staff alinhardt@keysnews.com A person was struck by a vehicle Friday morning on Big Pine Key, marking the second such incident on the Lower Keys island in about a month, according to the Florida Highway Patrol. Darline Pointer, 36, of Summerland Key, was walking northbound on the east side shoulder of U.S. 1 with her two children in an area with little or no lighting when she was struck at 6:45 a.m., said FHP Lt. Kathy McKinney. The vehicle, identified as a truck, continued northbound. Pointer was airlifted to Ryder Trauma Center in Miami where she was listed in good condition Friday afternoon, McKinney said. The children were not injured in the crash, she added. Their ages were not released. Monroe County Sheriff's Office deputies stopped the Toyota Tacoma pickup at Mile Marker 47 on U.S. 1 a short time later. The driver, whose name was not released because he is a juvenile, was arrested and faces charges of leaving the scene of a crash with serious bodily injury. Other charges are pending the investigation, McKinney said. There were no reports of any other vehicles involved. On Jan. 3, sheriff's office deputies found Scott Allen Foulz, 29, of Big Pine Key, unconscious at 10:34 p.m. on First Street near Avenue A after receiving reports of an injured man on the side of the road. Foulz was taken to Fishermen's Hospital, where he was pronounced dead. Troopers reported identifying a suspect vehicle in that case, but have yet to make an arrest as of Friday. The FHP has declined to comment on what led troopers to the vehicle and the people who have been interviewed, citing the ongoing investigation. Troopers ask anyone with information about Foulz's death to call FHP Cpl. Cliff Fisher at 305-470-2500

Earlier observations of this radiation had suggested the first generation of stars were bursting into life by about 420 million years after the Big Bang. Planck's new data now indicates this great ignition was well established by some 560 million years after it all got going. "This difference of 140 million years might not seem that significant in the context of the 13.8-billion-year history of the cosmos, but proportionately it's actually a very big change in our understanding of how certain key events progressed at the earliest epochs," said Prof George Efstathiou, one of the leaders of the Planck Science Collaboration.
