7-21-14 "The Sun Also Rises." The novel ends with Jake and Brett in a taxi speaking of the things that might have been... Until recently, almost all genetics research has focused on about two-percent of the human genome, the portion responsible for directly creating proteins. Now, a Yale researcher will direct a new center studying how the remaining 98 percent can be leveraged to develop new cancer treatments. On July 1, Frank Slack, a professor of molecular, cellular, and developmental biology, became director of the Institute for RNA Medicine (iRM) at The Cancer Center at Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center in Boston. Slack and his students will move from Yale to iRM, which will aim to create new medications and diagnostic tools by studying non-coding RNA. "If you can have people with many different areas of expertise in the same proximity, people have joint meetings, write for joint grants, and just sort of generally push the science forward in a more expedited way," Slack said. The new lab will start with three principle investigators, and Slack said he hopes to hire about one more researcher per year over the next decade, in addition to raising funds and establishing ties with the pharmaceutical industry. Though Slack has left Yale and is now a professor at Harvard Medical School, he said research partnerships with colleagues at Yale will continue. RNA was long thought of as a biological intermediate: DNA codes for RNA, and RNA carries that code to make proteins in the body. Research has shown only a small portion of the genome serves this process, with a significant portion coding for RNA that does not eventually lead to protein formation. Recent study has revealed diverse functions for such non-coding RNA, such as guiding proteins, regulating their expression, and otherwise shaping biological function. Since most pharmacological agents work by targeting proteins, Slack said these functional RNA could represent a new frontier both for cancer research and other biomedical fields. "With some luck, if the trends continue, this sort of research looks like it will be leading to new therapeutics and diagnostics," Slack said. Slack joined the Yale faculty in 2000.

Welcome, IBM. Seriously.

New class of business apps,
MD apps, Inventor apps
Edison would know AC wins

Welcome to the most exciting and important marketplace since the computer revolution began 35 years ago.

And congratulations on your first personal computer.

Putting real computer power in the hands of the individual is already improving the way people work, think, learn, communicate and spend their leisure hours.

Computer literacy is fast becoming as fundamental a skill as reading or writing.

When we invented the first personal computer system, we estimated that over 140,000,000 people worldwide could justify the purchase of one, if only they understood its benefits.

Next year alone, we project that well over 1,000,000 will come to that understanding. Over the next decade, the growth of the personal computer will continue in logarithmic leaps.

We look forward to responsible competition in the massive effort to distribute this American technology to the world.

And we appreciate the magnitude of your commitment.

Because what we are doing is increasing social capital by enhancing individual productivity.

Welcome to the task.

"The Sun Also Rises." The novel ends with Jake and Brett in a taxi speaking of the things that might have been... Verizon FiOS services are delivered over a fiber-to-the-premises network using passive optical network technology. Voice, video, and data travel over three wavelengths in the infrared spectrum. To serve a home, a single-mode optical fiber extends from an optical line terminal at a FiOS central office out to the neighborhoods where a passive optical splitter fans out the same signal on up to 32 fibers, thus serving up to 32 subscribers. At the subscriber's home, an Optical Network Terminal (ONT) transfers data onto the corresponding in-home copper wiring for phone, video and Internet access. [18] Older FiOS installations mount the ONT inside the house and use Category 5 cable for data and coaxial cable for video, while newer markets mount the ONT outside the house and use Multimedia over Coax Alliance (MoCA) protocol for both data and video over a single coaxial cable. Voice service is carried over the existing telephone wires already in the house. One of the three wavelength bands is devoted to carrying television channels using standard QAM cable television technology. The other two wavelengths are devoted to all other data, one for outbound and the other for inbound data. This includes video on demand, telephone and Internet data. This allocation of wavelengths adheres to the ITU-T G.983 standard, also known as an ATM passive optical network (APON). Verizon initially installed slower BPONs but now only installs GPONs specified in the ITU-T G.984 standard. These bands and speeds are: 1310 nm wavelength for upstream data at 155 Mbit/s (1.2 Gbit/s with GPON) 1490 nm wavelength for downstream data at 622 Mbit/s (2.4 Gbit/s with GPON) 1550 nm wavelength for QAM cable television with 870 MHz of bandwidth The set top box (STB) receives IR code and channel subscription information through the out-of-band (OOB) channel just as other coax or RF-based STB's do. However, guide data, cover art, widgets and other data are sent via IP over the data channels. All upstream OOB requests (or responses) are sent via IP over the data channels. All non-OOB data transactions to or from STB's are carried over the MoCA channels. The MoCA channel is also used to carry out inter-STB transactions (multi-room DVR, synchronization, etc.). FiOS is also compatible with CableCard technology allowing FiOS TV subscribers to receive encrypted and premium cable channels on CableCard capable devices

Cerebellum... Dr. Katrina Firlík Touching a Human Brain between her index finger and thumb swirling it around thinking about the cerebellum. I had to add this as only a neurosurgeon would have thought about what the cerebellum does in a live brain not on the index finger of Dr. Katrina! Cerebellum... None of this banter can hide the fact that despite a few pockets of eclectic knowledge, not only do we know little about how the cerebellum works, we know next to nothing about what it does. Purkinje cells have a great knack for becoming whatever researchers ask them to become. We know for example, that in a central region of the cerebellum called the floccular complex, Purkinje cells have been found to encode various metrics of the eye during smooth pursuit and other kinds of following movements. Similarly, topographic maps for other parts of the body have been loosely superimposed on the cerebellar surface in a crude intimation of its idealized function. Outputs of the cells in different areas have been imagined to encode everything from limb position, joint angle, speed, direction, or acceleration, to more derived esoterics like muscle force, spindle tension, elongation, fatigue, error, any number of predictors.

7-19-14 Toyota's 2015 Sienna minivan has now a feature called 'driver easy speak' that can amplify a parent's voice in the back seats. It uses a built-in microphone to intensify a parent's voice through speakers for the passenger sitting at the back, so they don't have to shout to them. However, kids can't talk back, at least not with amplified voices. The feature is an option on the 2015 Sienna, which is being refreshed with a totally new interior. It also has an optional "pull-down conversation mirror" that lets drivers check on kids without turning around.

7-19-14 Local Key West News... Ford Dealership is not Casa Antigua's owner Tom Oosterhoudt. I watched Tom walk along the balcony with the poor and tropical forest all around us. I thought he was going to lose his balance and fall into the pool 30 feet below. Well Greg + Tom made it in to the Book Reading. Lorian Hemingway Short Story Competition and Lorian didn't show up. She has a daughter too that was a no show. I observed them both in 2011 my 1st year here or 2012 I will look it up on my computer. Well Tom was the Back Surgery Competition... I asked him if he went to a Medical School, he told me where he went and it was not Yale. I then suggested Yale and told him I was going to build the Yale Key West Medical School here. He heard it OK, grin! I hope Tom makes it to Yale as were eating pizza around the pool over hearing to Tom talking about getting the screws taken out of his spine coming up... I guess many were Mad as Hell about Lorian Hemingway and her daughter not showing up... I hope its not a cocaine or heroin sick day! I read both books she wrote and one was a autobiography she tells all... wow!

KEY WEST, Florida Keys — A rich roster of literary events awaits readers and writers during Hemingway Days 2014, set for Tuesday through Sunday, July 15-20. The festival celebrates the literary accomplishments and exuberant Key West lifestyle of legendary writer Ernest Hemingway, who lived on the island throughout the 1930s.

Attractions include author readings and presentations, a look at Hemingway's little-known poetry and the announcement of the winners of the Lorian Hemingway Short Story Competition.

Lorian Hemingway, critically acclaimed author of "Walking Into the River," "Walk on Water" and "A World Turned Over," is a granddaughter of Ernest Hemingway. She has directed the competition for emerging writers since its 1981 inception.

The winners of the internationally recognized short story contest are to be announced at 8 p.m. Friday, July 18, at Casa Antigua, 314 Simonton St. Famed as Ernest
