Morgan is fending off getting involved just fine until his latest fishing customer gets knocked off by accident before he can pay up. Complicating things further for Morgan is a newcomer named Marie Browning (Lauren Bacall) who sort of attaches herself to him from the moment they meet. She has come from Brazil by way of Trinidad and ends up in Martinique only because she doesn't have money to go any further. They seem a perfect fit despite all the sparring between them, a point driven home by her response to Eddie's question about bees. The viewer knows at that moment that she and Harry are a match made in Hollywood heaven.

8-15-14 Dr. Lauren Becall MD - Bogart, a heavy smoker and drinker, developed cancer of the esophagus. He almost never spoke of his failing health and refused to see a doctor until January 1956. A diagnosis was made several weeks later and by then removal of his esophagus, two lymph nodes, and a rib on March 1, 1956, was too late to halt the disease, even with chemotherapy. He underwent corrective surgery in November 1956 after the cancer had spread. Katharine Hepburn and Spencer Tracy visited him at this time. Frank Sinatra was also a frequent visitor. With time, Bogart grew too weak to walk up and down stairs. He valiantly fought the pain and joked about his immobility: "Put me in the dumbwaiter and I'll ride down to the first floor in style." The dumbwaiter was then altered to accommodate his wheelchair. [122] In an interview, Hepburn described the last time she and Spencer Tracy saw Bogart (the night before he died): Spence patted him on the shoulder and said, "Goodnight, Bogie." Bogie turned his eyes to Spence very quietly and with a sweet smile covered Spence's hand with his own and said, "Goodbye, Spence." Spence's heart stood still. He understood. Bogart had just turned 57 and weighed 80 pounds (36 kg) when he died on January 14, 1957, after falling into a coma. He died at his home at 232 South Mapleton Drive in Holmby Hills, California. His simple funeral was held at All Saints Episcopal Church with musical selections from Bogart's favorite composers, Johann Sebastian Bach and Claude Debussy. The ceremony was attended by some of Hollywood's biggest stars, including Katharine Hepburn, Spencer Tracy, Judy Garland, David Niven, Ronald Reagan, James Mason, Bette Davis, Danny Kaye, Joan Fontaine, Marlene Dietrich, James Cagney, Errol Flynn, Gregory Peck and Gary Cooper, as well as Billy Wilder and Jack Warner. Bacall had asked Tracy to give the eulogy, but Tracy was too upset, so John Huston spoke instead and reminded the gathered mourners that while Bogart's life had ended far too soon, it had been a rich one.

8-14-14 Parietal lobe plays important roles in integrating sensory information from various parts of the body, knowledge of numbers and their relations, [3] and in the manipulation of objects. Its function also includes processing information relating to the sense of touch. [4] Portions of the parietal lobe are involved with visuospatial processing. Although multisensory in nature, the posterior parietal cortex is often referred to by vision scientists as the dorsal stream of vision (as opposed to the ventral stream in the temporal lobe). This dorsal stream has been called both the "where" stream (as in spatial vision) [5] and the "how" stream (as in vision for action). [6] The posterior parietal cortex (PPC) receives somatosensory and/or visual input,

8-13-14 "head-on crash" BY ADAM LINHARDT Citizen Staff alinhardt@keysnews.com A Key West woman and a Polish man were hurt in a head-on car crash on U.S. 1 Sunday, according to the Florida Highway Patrol. Troopers say Helene Blanchard, 40, a former employee of The Citizen, was driving north at Mile Marker 15 on the Lower Sugarloaf Channel Bridge at 2:20 p.m. when she veered into the southbound lane, according to a press release. Blanchard's 2004 Chevrolet struck a 2013 Ford driven by Wieslaw Brodaczewski, 58, of Dubai. Brodaczewski and a passenger in the Ford, Mark Moneaux, 65, of Poland, were taken to Lower Keys Medical Center on Stock Island. A second passenger in the Ford, Hanna Brodaczewski, 58, of Dubai, was not injured. Blanchard's children were not hurt in the crash -- a 7-year-old girl and 5-year-old boy. Neither drugs nor alcohol were believed to be factors in the crash, according to the FHP. Blanchard and her children were wearing seat belts, but Moneaux was not. Wieslaw and Hanna Brodaczewski were wearing seat belts, reports state. Blanchard broke her pelvis in the crash, she said when reached by phone at Lower Keys Medical Center. She did not have to undergo surgery, she added. "I'm going to be better, but I have to heal," she said. "Right now, I can't even sit in a chair." Blanchard was cited for failure to drive in a single lane, but she said she doesn't remember the crash. "I blacked out," she said. "The kids are OK, thankfully." Moneaux was in serious condition when he was transported, reports state. Troopers and Monroe County Sheriff's Office deputies alternated traffic via one lane for two hours while clearing the scene. alinhardt@keysnews.com

8-13-14 Mass Murder by not giving Dartmouth $7 Trillion of the $777 Trillion for a Memory Pill Invention!

Dartmouth researchers demonstrate in a new study that a previously understudied part of the brain, the retrosplenial cortex, is essential for forming the basis for contextual memories, which help you to recall events ranging from global disasters to where you parked your car.

*An important aspect of memory is the ability to recall the physical place, or context, in which an event occurred. For example, in recalling emotionally charged events, such as the Sept. 11 terror attacks or JFK assassination, we remember not only the event but where we were when it happened. Indeed, in discussing such event with others, we often ask "where were you when..." Processing "where" information is also important for mundane daily events, such as remembering where you parked your car.
