In 867 AD, Viking pirates from Zealand and Uppsala landed in Scotland. When news of the raid reached Saint Ebba, she gathered her nuns together and urged them to disfigure themselves, so that they might be unappealing to the Vikings. In this way, they hoped to protect their chastity. She demonstrated this by cutting off her nose and upper lip, and the nuns proceeded to do the same. The Viking raiders were so disgusted that they burned the entire building to the ground with the nuns inside and HIV... blackmail's she knows about from the Today Show. I remember the first time one of my children text ed me a photo of a skin lesion. It was not a photo of my own child's skin, but that of a college roommate's, and the message was something like: "Hi, Mom, is this anything to worry about?" There was no identifying information – I couldn't actually tell what part of the body I was looking at – and there was certainly no medical history (a 19-year-old in generally good health has had this mark on the arm for a week and it seems to be getting bigger but it doesn't hurt if you press on it ... that kind of thing). I tried to take it as a tribute – friends sitting around a dorm room, showing one another funny lumps and bumps, and up speaks my offspring: "Oh, my mom will be able to tell you what that is!" The intensity with which teenagers live on and through their phones is hardly news. Many parents find themselves trying, and often failing, to legislate phone use at the table and at bedtime. So going away to college does mean, among many forms of independence, phone freedom. Telemetric has been much in the news as researchers investigate how technology can extend the reach of medical services, and a host of start-ups and app developers look for ways to incorporate medical care into our relationships with our devices. And so in pediatrics, there is discussion about the potential for making health part of that adolescent connectedness. Even when it's not long-distance communication, it improves communication because they think to use the phone to take a picture of the rash that they can show you when they come in to see you," said Dr. Cindy Osman, a clinical associate professor of pediatrics at New York University. Cindy + Perri must get a vaginal discharge smartphone photo from someone so why the Hell didn't they make this a front page picture in the New York Times Today? Hell he needed to email Michael Douglas about getting cancer from oral sex! Which almost cost him his marriage. Patrick K. Fitzgerald, the vice president for entrepreneurship and innovation at Children's Hospital of Philadelphia, said that "to some degree we are all self-diagnosing nowadays," using various sites and tools on the Internet. The question, he told me, is how hospitals can incorporate that into their patient care "so people are getting the right care at the right price." Dr. James P. Marcín, a pediatric critical care specialist at the University of California, Davis, was the lead author on last summer's American Academy of Pediatrics policy statement on telemetric and how it can be used to improve access to care for children. Put a Smartphone cam on all Priest 24/7 would help reduce the sex abuse going on today in the Catholic Church. No Dr's Dr. James P. Marcín + Dr. James P. Marcín can't write this in Today's New York Times on orders from our 1984 II Dictators!!

in jail. Mr. Putin has said the propaganda law protects children from being exposed to behaviors he regards as abnormal. The new bill would take that preposterous rationale one step further and criminalize an act as harmless and natural as holding hands in public. A vaguely written "gay propaganda" law passed in 2013 created a toxic environment for gay men and lesbians in Russia. Now, some lawmakers want to further denigrate and stigmatize gay people. A new bill scheduled for debate on Friday in the lower house of Parliament would allow the authorities to impose fines and even jail time for public displays of affection between people of the same sex. The law would criminalize "the public expression of nontraditional sexual relations, manifested in a public demonstration of personal perverted sexual preferences in public spaces." If such displays of affection happen in educational or cultural institutions, a jail sentence of up to 15 days can be imposed. Ivan Nikitchuk, one of the lawmakers who introduced the bill, Ivan MD and Putin MD after reading, and watching a New York Times super computer simulation about STD's, MS Virus, will pass this new law against gays.
