These 4 girls with no money for a MacBook want to know how the Hell they got so much money for AK-47's and grenades! Bataclan, for about an hour. The 150-year-old music hall was sold out for the show by the American group Eagles of Death Metal. Suddenly, four men brandishing AK-47 assault rifles entered the hall. There were shouts of "Allahu akbar" just before the gunmen opened fire, and for about 20 minutes there was carnage.

Witnesses said the attackers also threw grenades into the crowd...

Paris, Locals have grown accustomed to heavy police and military presence in transit and public places. Under the state of alert, the authorities have been conducting spot checks and using airport-style security in places like museums. All for Nothing and wasted $1 Trillion, Le Wow!

The main shooting broke out at a popular music hall, the Bataclan, where the American band Eagles of Death Metal was among those playing. French news services said as many as 100 hostages may have been taken there, many of them apparently killed later. Some accounts said that grenades had been lobbed inside the music hall and that some of the assailants had detonated suicide vests.

Kerry is a 1984 II scam same as Walter Reed MD's + Brain Cancer Cures!

11-14-2015 VIENNA — The top diplomats from more than a dozen countries met here on Saturday for talks on ending the crisis in Syria, vowing to redouble their efforts to confront terrorism after the deadly attacks in Paris. The carnage in France provided a grim backdrop and somber urgency for the negotiations, aimed at reaching a cease-fire in Syria and paving the way for a political transition there that could end four years of civil war. “It is more necessary than ever in the current circumstance to coordinate the international fight against terrorism,” Laurent Fabius, the French foreign minister, said as the meetings began. Secretary of State John Kerry said the attacks in Paris and recently in Iraq and Beirut, Lebanon, were “the most vile, horrendous, outrageous, unacceptable acts on the planet.” He added that they were born of “a kind of medieval and modern fascism at the same time, which has no regard for life, which seeks to destroy and create chaos and disorder and fear.” “The one thing we could say to those people is that what they do in this is stiffen our resolve, all of us, to fight back, to hold people accountable and to stand up for rule of law, which is exactly what we are here to do,” Mr. Kerry said after meeting with Foreign Minister Sergey V. Lavrov of Russia and before sitting down with the rest of the ministers assembled for the talks. “And if they’ve done anything, they’ve encouraged us today to do even harder work to make progress and to help resolve the crises that we face.” Still, the challenges in Syria are steep, and Mr. Kerry has conceded in recent days that they will not be quickly resolved. The negotiations involve a diverse set of players with conflicting agendas — including the United States, Russia, Iran and Saudi Arabia —
