Paradise Lost: Devastation on the U.S. Virgin Islands because the Elite refused to build Oil Platform Homes out of Steele and Titanium, the Eiffel Tower Trump Towers house size and skyscraper size will not be rebuilt in the Islands yet... grin. Some of the most idyllic — IP invention projects as tourism—destinations in the Caribbean have been censored for a decade as the banner on this web page for 1,001 IP invention projects is 10 years old. Catastrophic as no one was inventing titanium homes with windmill cars parked on the roofs and some islands, are almost entirely in ruins. Invention Projects Tourism is the most important economic driver... will be after the French Revolution, grin. Royal Caribbean International and Norwegian Cruise Line cruise ships went from being floating playgrounds to rescue vessels. Next chapter they will be Hospital Ships docking at Key West the Yale Key West Medical School.

9-4-2017 Inventors Day; Political winds, WindmillCAR's in Quebec fire bombed with Canada cops inside burned like Officer Jason above... Just ask Queen Victoria, whose rounded frame perches atop hundreds of plinths across the Commonwealth, with an air of solemn, severe solidity. But in 1963 in Quebec, members of a separatist paramilitary group stuck dynamite under the dress of her local statue. It exploded with a force so great that her head was found 100 yards away.

Times Op-Ed Contributor: Why We Should Put Women on Pedestals

9-4-2017 Inventors Day; Queen Victoria in Canada statue exploded with a force so great that her head was found 100 yards away... Kim Wall's head has not been found in Denmark.

Kim Wall's head has not been found in Denmark!

Copenhagen, statue of Kim Wall's Head will greet everyone flying in with a 100" LG Ultra monitor of her getting into the sub... and all these women who wrote up warnings about men killing women will update the murder stats every day for the Copenhagen Tourists.

Kin Walls head on Pedestals in front of the NY Times Building is out of the Question, Why We Should Put Women on Pedestals.

Ivanka's Head a statue on a Pedestal... will Trump save her life! Let Ivanka go down into the USS Jimmy Carter Nuke Submarine as it fires 40 H-Bombs into Korea.

9-4-2017 Inventors Day; What if Kim Wall took a video of her killer cutting off her Head, arms, legs... taking a submarine trip with a passionate inventor seemed typical for the 30-year-old freelancer, as her friends told it. "That was what she did. She just wandered places," said Christopher Harress?, a reporter for AL.com, who met Wall when they both studied at Columbia University. "She trusted somebody, and then this is what happened," Harress told The Washington Post. Madsen, was described as "argumentative" and "short-fused." According to the New York Times, Thomas Djursing, a biographer working on a book about the inventor, told a local newspaper, "He argues with every Tom, Dick and Harry," and was generally an angry man. Dr. Lisa in the Art of the Diagnosis should have been the NY Times reporter doing a medical biography on him.

9-4-2017 Inventors Day; And the sad truth is that it's all irrelevant, because women are at risk (almost always from men) wherever they go." Pentagon Generals realize this more than women journalists and MD yet nothing is done about iDash Cam's in all cars. Military. Only unifying theme to violence is masculinity. That's what women have to face, daily, and that's what we need to address." Pentagon has addressed this and won!

9-4-2017 Inventors Day; I would have gotten on the submarine just as Wall had, and I know that my colleagues and I will continue to ask that editors send us to report on some of the most dangerous regions in the world, just as Wall did. The objective of masculine violence is to silence women, but to honor Wall's life, we must not be silent. We must make ourselves heard. The tragic story of Swedish journalist Kim Wall's killing is a reminder of the dangers — subtle and otherwise — that women journalists often face. BY Alice Driver. We are forced to measure danger in mundane situations and to weigh whether we can continue an assignment due to subtle threats or insinuations from men at the NY Times. When Swedish journalist Kim Wall disappeared on August 11, 2017, there was a lot of speculation about why she had agreed to go on a submarine alone with its inventor, Peter Madsen. However, among Wall's colleagues, the conversation was a different one. As Alexis Okeowo wrote in her moving tribute to Wall in The New Yorker, "I probably would have gone down into the submarine with Madsen — so would a lot of female journalists I know." Manhattan! first time I met Kim in person was last year, at the birthday party of a mutual friend: it was at a sleek hotel somewhere on the west side of Manhattan... ...she given me advice as we plotted about how best to handle romantic intrigues.

9-4-2017 Inventors Day; Today, Many women in the USA will be murdered by a man and tomorrow the NY Times in memory of Kim will not report the murder. It's Labor Day not Invention Day.

9-2-2017 Saturday; Tit-for-Tat. Paris WindmillCAR's... Aug. 31. The day after the crash he was able to walk down the stairs from the maternity ward and watch as Prince Charles and President Jacques Chirac escorted Diana's body from a building on the middle of the campus to a hearse for the journey back to Britain. Days later, when the nurses allowed me to venture out, I went to La Salpêtrière's lovely 17th-century chapel and made a detour to look at the hospital entrance. Its steps were piled high with bouquets left in honor of Diana. My husband and I took pictures so that we could show our son later how the French "welcomed his birth." Not that he cared. As it turns out, like so many of his generation, Clement doesn't seem to have much interest in the princess or the events that transfixed the world 20 years ago. And in any case, I think he gets embarrassed when his parents talk about the circumstances of his birth. As for me, I think about Diana every Aug. 31, 1997 and count the years since her death in the number of my son's birthdays. By Carmel McCoubrey is a staff editor in the Op-Ed section NY Times Paris.

Diesel - aggressive type of leukemia — B-cell acute lymphoblastic leukemia!

9-1-2017 Friday; 30 Years from Today Diesel will still be in the DNA of 1 Billion Children

Diesel is the New Disease of Qatar Kings - "the disease of kings," gout was first identified by the Egyptians some 4,600 years ago but was not well understood until the last century. It is now recognized as a buildup of uric acid, a waste product of a diet rich in meat and alcohol. When intake of these foods exceeds the body's ability to eliminate their waste, uric acid accumulates in the bloodstream, a condition known as hyperuricemia. Eventually this excess waste can form small, sharp crystals, which clump together. When deposited in the soft tissues, they form painless nodules called tophi — like the lima-bean bump on the man’s wrist. But when deposited in the joint space, these crystals cause the terrible pain, swelling and inflammation of gout. Heudebert started the man on methylprednisolone, a steroid medication that can reduce the pain and swelling of gout rapidly. Drinking Water with Diesel, Gasoline, Coal, high levels of lead. This dangerous substance leaches into the drink from the cars in which it is frequently made. Once consumed, lead spreads through the body, infiltrating tissues from red blood cells, to organs, to bone. It can interfere with many normal bodily functions at the cellular level, even 30 years later, and can damage the kidneys, making it difficult to get rid of uric acid.

Diesel - aggressive type of leukemia — B-cell acute lymphoblastic leukemia

Diesel - The Food and Drug Administration on Wednesday approved the first-ever treatment that genetically alters a patient's own cells to fight cancer, a milestone that is expected to transform treatment in the coming years. The new therapy turns a patient's cells into a "living drug," and trains them to recognize and attack the disease. It is part of the rapidly growing field of immunotherapy that bolsters the immune system through drugs and other therapies and has, in some cases, led to long remissions and possibly even cures. The therapy, marketed as Kymriah and made by Novartis, was approved for children and young adults for an aggressive type of leukemia — B-cell acute lymphoblastic leukemia.

She turned down the heat, handed me the wooden spoon and told me to keep an eye on the pot for two hours. I was simultaneously horrified about how overcooked they'd be in that time and deeply ashamed about how far off I'd been. But I did what Benedetta asked and tended to the beans. As they cooked, they changed from firm and bright to limp and gray, just as I'd feared. For over an hour, the beans tasted forgettable. I worried I'd ruined them a second time. But right around the two-hour mark, they transformed again, into a dark, tangled mess, soft but defined. They were extraordinarily rich, deliriously sweet and dense with flavor. I'd never tasted anything like them. I wondered why.

A year ago, while crossing the street with a green light, I was swiped by a bicyclist and narrowly escaped being thrown to the ground. The cyclist continued on her way, her ponytail swinging in the breeze, without so much as a look back. A bicycle is a vehicle like a car. Why not license bicycles as we do cars? We all know that following traffic rules is influenced by the chance of getting a ticket. Surely this would also apply to cyclists. A small annual fee to cover the cost of a license plate would not be a burden to cyclists and might avoid others having to share Lucy Madison's heartbreaking experience. 8-23-2017 Wednesday; After reporting from the heart of postwar Sri Lanka and the capital of North Korea, taking a submarine trip with a passionate inventor seemed typical for the 30-year-old freelancer, as her friends told it. “That was what she did. She just wandered places,” said Christopher Harress?, a reporter for AL.com, who met Wall when they both studied at Columbia University. “She trusted somebody, and then this is what happened,” Harress told The Washington Post. Madsen, was described as “argumentative” and “short-fused.” According to the New York Times, Thomas Djursing, a biographer working on a book about the inventor, told a local newspaper, “He argues with every Tom, Dick and Harry,” and was generally an angry man. Dr. Lisa in the Art of the Diagnosis should have been the NY Times reporter doing a medical biography on him.

Addicts at the NY Times skip watching the 12 Steps and going to the meetings on addictions. So they try to get everyone addicted. "Women of Sex Tech, Unite" By ANNA NORTH For Janet Lieberman, making sex toys started as a bit of a joke. In 2013, she was living in Brooklyn and getting ready to leave MakerBot, where she worked as an engineer. When people asked her what she planned to do next, she'd say she wanted to start a sex toy company. To start Dame Products. They designed two vibrators, the Fin and the Eva. Since then, the company has gotten widespread media attention (including in The Times), and broken down barriers: Last year, Dame became the first company to receive funding through Kickstarter for a sex toy. Brooklyn-based sex educator and consultant, citing several studies, “yet we put it on a pedestal.” He compares using a vibrator during sex to adding salt to food: “If you undersalt things, it’s always going to be a little bland. The vibrator is a very useful way to make sure the flavor hits the spot.” For many members of Women of Sex Tech, encouraging frank talk about sexuality is both a personal and a professional mission. Sometimes that starts close to home. Gigi Engle, 26, a sex educator, has given vibrators to both her mother and her aunt. Ms. Bonilla wasn’t sure what her mother, a Jehovah’s Witness whom she saw as very pious and conservative, would think of her business. But her reaction was pragmatic: “You’ve got to give people what they want.”

8-18-2017 Friday; "In the United States alone, car accidents kill 30,000 to 40,000 people a year. Worldwide, terrorist attacks using cars or other vehicles have killed a tiny fraction of that number." NY Times. "Whatever the effect of such attacks on Western politics, they are already changing, in subtle but unmistakable ways, the mental geography of urban life. As cities inevitably produce more barriers to wall off the remote threat of another attack, we will grow only more conscious of the ever-present threat posed by ordinary cars."

Kings Hospital in Brooklyn the MD's only wash their hands if someone is watching today. Star Wars Star Trek Kings Hospital Today is only in Qatar and Saudi Arabia. In 2010, a Brooklyn woman named Lavern Wilkinson went to Kings County Hospital with chest pain. An X-ray was taken. It looked fine, a first-year resident in the emergency room said, and Ms. Wilkinson was sent home. She wasn't fine. She started to have breathing troubles, which hospital doctors ascribed to asthma. But in 2012 they looked again at the old X-ray, and saw what should have been noticed at the start: a small mass, plausibly curable at the time. It had since developed into full-blown lung cancer, and spread to other organs. In March 2013, Ms. Wilkinson died at age 41. She had tried a year earlier to sue city-owned Kings County Hospital for malpractice, but was too late. New York law requires that such a lawsuit be brought no later than 15 months after a medical mistake is made. Mr. Cuomo's aides say only that he is evaluating the Art of the Diagnosis by Dr. Lisa at Yale Key West Medical School. lawyers are enriched or doctors are protected from their own mistakes... today its not washing your hands MD and hospital infections. No one is arrested at Kings Hospital in Brooklyn. Patients will die from Hospital infections and bed sores.

8-16-2017 Wednesday; Detectives believed the person who murdered Howard Pilmar in March 1996 must have known him. The owner of two gourmet coffee bars and an office supply business, Mr. Pilmar had been found stabbed to death in a hallway outside his fourth-floor office on East 33d Street. There was no sign of forced entry to the building or the hallway, which was secured. His watch was missing but not his wallet with $200, making burglary an unlikely motive. He had been stabbed 27 times shortly after the security guard’s quitting time. The number of wounds suggested the killer had emotional ties to the victim; the timing suggested the killer knew his routine. The police learned his wife, Roslyn, and her brother, Evan Wald, had visited him in the office the night before. They questioned Mr. Wald, who had a cut on his hand. Investigators also discovered that Mrs. Pilmar stood to benefit from two life insurance policies.

8-14-2017 Monday; Fallout from Diagnosis at Yale Key West Medical School: Fruitcake From Robert Scott Expedition Is 'Almost' Edible at 106 Years Old" By YONETTE JOSEPH What did Grandma put in this thing?, its ubiquity (stubbornly appearing at any or every celebrator event) and its toughness (the fridge gives it life), the dessert may have further cemented itself in food lore after a discovery in Antarctica at Scott's camp. The cake, dating to the Cape Adare-based Northern Party of Scott's Terra Nova expedition (1910-13), was found in Antarctica's oldest building, which was constructed by a Norwegian explorer's team in 1899 and used by Scott's team in 1911, the trust said, wrapped in paper and in its original "tin-plated iron alloy tin" container, was made by the British biscuit company Huntley & Palmers. But why did the explorers haul a fruitcake to the South Pole? "It's an ideal high-energy food for Antarctic conditions," she said, "and is still a favorite item on modern-day trips to the ice." Ms. Meek explained to National Geographic: "Fruitcake was a popular item in English society at the time, and it remains popular today. Living and working in Antarctica tends to lead to a craving for high-fat, high-sugar food, and fruitcake fits the bill nicely, not to mention going very well with a cup of tea." The museum's website said, "Modern research has shown that the polar party's daily ration of 4,100 calories was 800 calories short, and their diet was deficient in vitamins, as well as energy-producing elements."

He and his companions made the arduous trip to the bottom of the world, only to find that a Norwegian team had beaten them to it by 33 days. 8-13-2017 Sunday; Because they championed sexual equality — at work, at home and in the bedroom — and were willing to enforce it, Communist women who occupied positions in the state apparatus could be called cultural imperialists. But the liberation they imposed radically transformed millions of lives across the globe, including those of many women who still walk among us as the mothers and grandmothers of adults in the now democratic member states of the European Union. Those comrades' insistence on government intervention may seem heavy-handed to our post modern sensibilities, but sometimes necessary social change — which soon comes to be seen as the natural order of things — needs an emancipation proclamation from above. by Kristen R. 8-12-2017 Saturday; Deaths from 10 Billion eggs, how many? You don't need to be a doctor to see that this is absurd statistics not to go viral. Unlike the sector in the United States, where large conglomerates hold millions of laying chickens, the average farmer in the Netherlands has 40,000 to 50,000 laying chickens. The usual farm might employ a farmhand or two, but most of the work is done by a family. In this way, roughly 900 farms produce 10 billion eggs a year, roughly two-thirds of which are exported... using a local company this year to rid her chickens of pesky lice... The Dutch police arrested two men who ran the delousing company, Chickfriend, which the authorities believe is responsible for contaminating up to 180 farms in the Netherlands. You don't need to be a doctor to see that this is absurd... remember Doctors only wash their hands if someone is watching. So who is watching the delousing guys at the chicken farms, 180 in the Dutch Nation. The usual cleaning products are effective in the long-term only when used repeatedly, farmers say. One of the reasons Chickfriend became so popular was that farmers found that their treatment was more effective. Authorities now believe that was due to fipronil. "If something sounds too good to be true, it usually is," said Henne de Haan, head of the Dutch poultry growers association. "And when a product sounds too good to be true, there must be something wrong with it. ...remember Doctors only wash their hands if someone is watching.

Big cities like New York, the reasoning went, would be a lost cause in the event of a direct hit. As Tom Vanderbilt wrote in The New York Times in 2003, this incensed Nelson Rockefeller, who became the governor of New York in 1959. He built a bunker in Albany. During construction of Chase Manhattan Bank's new headquarters on Liberty Street in Lower Manhattan — Nelson's brother David was the president — subbasements were set up to protect 15,000 people in case of an attack. 8-10-2017 Thursday; Ivanka's Wedding Gifts from Dad... "He had his first son's wedding one year, so he bought a pair of three-carat diamond cuff links that we made in our workshop." The cuff links, he added, cost $100,000. As for the cuff links, "I lost them at the wedding. I partied too much." For four decades, the Stefano Ricci label has come to occupy a unique place in the fashion firmament. Makers of hyperexpensive men's wear and accessories, this tightly held family business has outfitted Kremlin power brokers, Middle Eastern oil Men... "When I looked into their eyes, I found an energy. I decided, my God, these people are going to conquer the world." As China's cities grew into forests of gleaming skyscrapers over the next quarter-century, the company opened another 11 boutiques there, including the 22,000-square-foot "mansion" in Shanghai that features an upstairs private club available to clients who spend more than $100,000 a year, offering Cohiba cigars and white truffle ravioli courtesy of Florentine chefs, among other amenities. Stefano also jumped in early on the Russian market, forging ties with its emergent industrialist class in the 1990s and opening a Moscow boutique in 2004. Seven years later, the company celebrated the opening of its second Moscow boutique, a short stroll from the Kremlin, with a lavish fashion show for 5,000. Last year, the company presented a silk damask casual made of fabric from this artisanal workshop to Pope Francis on a visit to Florence. Stefano Ricci the label would be unthinkable without Florence as home, the patriarch said in a telephone interview last week from the family's 1,800-acre country estate, Poggio ai Segugi, nestled in the Tuscan hills north of Florence. Stefano's wife, Claudia, and the eldest son, Niccolo, 40, who serve as the company's co-chief executives. "Like all Italian families, the boss is mama," Filippo said. The family races together, driving museum-quality automobiles like an Aston Martin Le Mans from 1933, or a Jaguar XK120 from 1952, in the Mille Miglia vintage car race. Stefano hardly considers the United States an afterthought. This year, the company plans to open boutiques in Miami. If nothing else, however, Stefano always feels as if he can look to the skies for guidance. Throughout his travels, he said, in the Northwest Territories, the Yukon, the Alps, South America, "I always had over my head, an eagle flying," he said. "And I was always begging the eagle, help me to go home safe." So maybe that's the real meaning of the eagle in his collection — the eagle as guardian angel. "Maybe I don't deserve as much an angel," he said with a hearty smoker's cough. "But I appreciate the presence."

8-7-2017 Monday; At one of Mr. Wu's workshops in Songzhuang, a gritty suburb of Beijing that has become known as a colony for artists priced out of the center, three of 14 artists worked with small pieces of broken or cut mammoth tusks to fashion figurines. "There's a very smooth transition from elephant to mammoth," one carver, Zheng Kaiwen, said. Since finishing art school in 2007, he has worked only with mammoth, never elephant, he said, adding that he chose it over other materials, like jade, because it "is more expressive." "This tradition has been inherited for so many years," he said, "it is not going to disappear."

21 July 2017 Friday; Mark Goldin was the doctor on call that day. The man explained that the numbness and tingling that he had in his left arm for the past couple of years had suddenly spread to the other arm. His legs were numb, and he was having trouble walking. Examining him, Goldin found deficits that were subtle but real. When he asked the patient to reach out and touch the doctor's finger with his own, he missed. His left arm was much weaker than his right, and his reflexes everywhere were abnormally exaggerated. The combination of hiccups and odd neurological symptoms worried Goldin. Was there an infection in the patient's brain? A tumor? A head CT scan showed that the patient had a small mass right where the brain joined the spinal cord. The brain tissue surrounding the tiny mass looked different from the other surrounding tissue. But it was hard to see just what was going on because of the bone at the back of the skull. An M.R.I. allowed them to see that the mass was encased in a sac of fluid that extended into the spinal cord like a tadpole's tail. Goldin had never seen anything like it. Was this a collection of tumors — metastasized from a cancer somewhere else in the body? Or was it one big, strange tumor? Goldin phoned a neurosurgeon on call, Ahmad Latefi, with the results. The surgeon was quiet as he reviewed the M.R.I. on his own screen. He recognized the tumor immediately. This is a hemangioblastoma, he said flatly. The man needs surgery. In the operating room, Latefi gently removed the bony layer of the spine, where he knew the tumor was located. Once past the bone, the surgeon moved his microscope into place. He cut through the dura, the thick protective sack around the cord. He had to get past the long fibers that make up the spinal column without cutting them to reach the tumor. He gently separated the fibers connecting brain to body to reveal a bright orange, marble-size blob. Each of the many blood vessels nourishing the mass had to be individually cut before it could be removed. With that accomplished, the fluid-filled cyst would be reabsorbed by the body. The surgery lasted nearly six hours. The man went home after five days. The hiccups persisted — it takes time for the nerves to recover. In the hospital, a nurse had taught him a trick that worked as well as any medication. If he poured a packet of sugar under his tongue, by the time it dissolved, the hiccups would be gone. It was remarkably effective — no one knows why. At home he didn't use sugar. Dr. Lisa Sanders recreates hard-to-solve medical case studies.

6-15-2017 Thursday; 3 Story Heavy Lift Helicopter Combines changed to "3 Story Heavy Lift Fire Fighting Helicopters" is a Lost Invention by BP Oil elite rulers in London. LONDON — Helicopters are not unusual in London, but the intense buzzing from the sky at 5 a.m. roused me early. From my balcony, I could see a huge plume of smoke billowing up from behind trees. It came from a blaze at Grenfell Tower, a 24-floor residential building, not far from where I live in West London. The authorities declared it a major incident as more than 200 firefighters battled the fire, with an unknown number of people trapped inside.
